Scandinavian Inspirations

1st place

Lucja Kalkstein

Eryk Sp. z o.o.

It is very Scandinavian to keep things simple and keep them unchanged – like these colourful traditional beach cabins on the small Danish island of Ærø

Ærø, Denmark

Värmdö, Sweden

2nd place

Katarzyna Szota

Embassy of Sweden

The sculpture AINSA IV by Jaume Plensa is part of Sculpture in Nature – the permanent outdoor exhibition at Artipelag – a venue for art, set on Värmdö in the Stockholm Archipelago. The works can be seen along the walking paths in the surrounding forests and meadows, along the shores and at the entrance.

Kungsleden, Sweden

3rd place

Slow life and simple things like sunrise by the lake and a cup of coffee or walk in the forest and enjoying peace and quiet when you can relax just watching the lake, no matter the weather.

Kragerø, South of Norway

Joanna Suszczyk

Willis Towers Watson Polska

Kragerø, South of Norway, Fiskesuppe with the view. Stunning views, healthy sea food and sauna are the typically Scandinavian things. Eating outdoor, in the beautiful Scandinavian nature, it is one of the most fantastic thing to do in the Nordic countries.

"I Storm og Stille (In Storm and Silence)" - Christiansø marina, Denmark. The photo is dedicated to Holger Drachmann, the author of "In Storm and Silence", one of the most popular Danish poets.

Holger was sent to Bornholm and Christiansø to learn to paint. He certainly had the opportunity to watch fishermen returning from catching herrings;

Copenhagen, Denmark

Soren Olsen

Small boy greeting a group of kayaks coming through Copenhagen Harbour which arguably is the cleanest harbour of any major city in Europe. This has transformed how the citizens of the Danish capital can enjoy the waterfront (and swim in the harbour) – an inspiration to many other cities in Europe.

Norway, Nordkapp
